NeonKey

UNLOCK TECH, WHATEVER YOUR LEVEL

The One-Minute Fix List

12 small fixes for your business tech and customer follow-up

Every fix from Unlock the Week, NeonKey's free weekly email, on one page. Pick one a week. Each takes a few minutes, needs no new software, and works for a business of one or twenty.

01 · GROW YOUR BUSINESS

Fill out your own contact form tonight

The fastest reply usually wins the job.

- Did the message reach you? Look in spam and in any shared inbox too.
- Did it reach your phone, or only a computer you won't open until morning?
- Did the "customer" get anything back? Even a short "Got it, we'll reply by noon tomorrow" tells people they reached a real business.

02 · STAY SECURE

Protect the one account that resets all the others

Your email inbox is the master key to everything else.

- Business email (Google Workspace, Microsoft 365 or whoever hosts it).
- Your domain registrar, where your website address is registered.
- Your bank and payment accounts.

03 · GROW YOUR BUSINESS

What happens to the calls you miss?

Every missed call is a question someone wanted answered.

- Rewrite your voicemail greeting. Say when you'll call back, and offer a faster option: "or text us at this number" or "or use the form at yourwebsite.com." Some callers won't leave a message, but they will take a next step if you give them one.
- Check your missed-call list at set times, like lunch and end of day, and call or text everyone back, even the ones who didn't leave a voicemail. A short text works: "Hi, this is [business]. Sorry we missed your call. How can we help?"

04 · STAY SECURE

Are your emails landing in spam?

If your emails land in spam, your customers think you never replied.

- Send an email from your business address to a personal Gmail account.
- Open it, click the three dots, and choose "Show original."
- Near the top, look for SPF, DKIM and DMARC. You want PASS on all three.

05 · GROW YOUR BUSINESS

The quote that went quiet

A quote with no reply isn't a no yet.

- Day 3: a short check-in. "Hi Sam, just checking you got the quote for the deck repair. Happy to answer any questions."
- Day 7: make it easy to decide. "Would it help to start the week of the 14th, or is the timing off?"
- After that, one last note: "We'll close this out for now. If anything changes, just reply."

06 · STAY SECURE

The "new bank details" email

When an email asks you to change where money goes, slow down.

- Confirm any request to change payment details through a different channel.
- Call the person at a number you already have, not one in the email.
- Share the rule with anyone who pays bills or handles orders.

07 · GROW YOUR BUSINESS

Reply to your reviews

People read how you answer reviews, not just the stars.

- Once a week, check your Google Business Profile and any other review sites you're listed on.
- Reply to every new review. For good ones, thank them and mention the job: "Thanks, Dana. Glad the furnace is running again before the cold snap."
- For bad ones, stay calm, don't argue, and take it offline: "We're sorry about the wait. Please call us at [number] so we can make it right."

08 · STAY SECURE

A year-end account cleanup

You can't protect an account you forgot you had.

- Every service your business signs into: email, bank, domain, website, software, social media.
- Who has access to each one.
- Whether two-step login is on.

09 · GROW YOUR BUSINESS

Where do your customers knock?

If inquiries arrive in five places, someone is probably watching only four.

- Phone and text
- Your website form
- Email addresses, including old ones still printed on business cards
- Facebook and Instagram messages
- Google Business Profile messages and calls
- Directories and booking sites

10 · STAY SECURE

Test your backup by restoring one file

A backup you've never restored is a guess.

- When did the last backup actually run?
- Is at least one copy stored away from the office, so a fire or theft can't take both?
- Does more than one person know how to restore?

11 · GROW YOUR BUSINESS

The email customers get after they reach out

Silence after "Submit" feels like nobody's home.

- Give a time window you can keep, like "by noon tomorrow."
- Send it from an address people can reply to, not a no-reply address.
- Test it yourself after you turn it on, and make sure it doesn't land in spam.

12 · STAY SECURE

A ten-minute Wi-Fi checkup

Your router is the front door to every device in the building.

- Log in to the router's settings. The address and login are often printed on a label on the router.
- Change the admin password if it's still the default.
- Check for a firmware update and install it.
- Make sure your Wi-Fi uses WPA2 or WPA3 security.
- Set up a separate guest network for customers and visitors, so their devices don't share a network with your computers and card reader.

Want the full version of each fix, plus a free guide from Learn? Get Unlock the Week every Wednesday at neonkey.tech/newsletter. Questions or stuck on one? Reply to any NeonKey email or write to hello@neonkey.tech.

These are general tips, not professional advice for your specific setup. © NeonKey · 607 Old Steese Hwy Ste B #341, Fairbanks, AK 99701